John Elchner's saloon, at 229 West Twelfth street, is the present subject of Mr. Kraft's attack. There is a Summe garden in the rear of the saloon, and Mr. Kraft claims that the noise from there prevents him and his family from sleeping at night. He called an officer at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and had the bartender arrested.

In court the policeman swore that he saw no evidence of a violation. Mr. Kraft's witnesses did not appear to substantiate his evidence that the place was

Mr. Kraft is a rather short gentleman, with a full beard, slightly tinged with gray, and determination written on every feature of his countenance. He stated to an "Evening World" reporter that he had driven one disorderly house from the block, and he purposed getting rid of the saloon in question. He has two grown up daughters, and he does not propose, he said, that they shall live in such a place. He thought the proprietor of the place had a strong pull, but he would endeavor to break it down in his efforts to obtain justice.

Gerl Held for Examination on that Charge.

Michael Geri, fifty-one years old, a saloon-keeper at 123 West Houston street, less variety of price and designs, from the Italian has had for a bartender Fabri de Corpis. Last night Corpls and his boss got into a discussion over some back salary, which Corpls alleged was overdue. Geri, it is said, seized an ice-pick, stabbed Corpls three times in the shoulder and three times in the lex. Corpls was attended by Dr. Attia Benzoni, who notified the Macdougal street police. When Policeman Dunn went to arrest Geri, he found him selling beer. So when he locked him up he charged him with violating the Excise law as well as with assault. In Jefferson Market Court to-day Geri was held for examination.
